

The Warren Alpert Medical School of Brown University adheres to the ACGME work hour regulations. In brief, students:

- Must not work more than 80 hours per week, averaged over a four week time period
- Must have one day off per week, averaged over a four week time period
- Cannot work more than 24 hours in any shift (students may spend up to another 4 hours in educational activities and/or activities related to patient safety)
- Must have 14 hours off between scheduled work and/or educational responsibilities after working a 24 hour shift
- Should have 8 hours off between scheduled work and/or educational responsibilities

The Warren Alpert Medical School tracks asks students to track work hours on their Oasis evaluation.
